

On June 17, 2009, David Crane, President and Chief Executive Officer of NRG Energy, Inc. ("NRG"), issued the following letter to certain business partners and associates of NRG:

[NRG ENERGY, INC. LETTERHEAD]

June 17, 2009

Dear Friend of NRG:

This morning Exelon disclosed that only 12% of NRG's shares had been tendered into the Exelon offer as of June 16th, a precipitous decline from the 51% which had been tendered at the expiration of the second exchange offer on February 26th. Exelon did NOT increase or otherwise modify its 0.485 exchange offer, which remains unchanged since October 19th, 2008.

It is very clear that the support for Exelon's offer among NRG shareholders has largely evaporated. The reasons for that are many and beyond the desired length of this letter so, for those who have a compelling interest, there is a link at the bottom of the page to our new investor presentation.

It is my strong belief that pursuing their offer over the past eight months has been a terrible waste of shareholder resources. As such, it is high time for Exelon either to put a very substantially improved offer on the table or to cease all hostile action against NRG. To date, Exelon has been unresponsive to my point of view but perhaps now they will listen to the 88% of NRG shareholders who did not tender their shares.

I hope you had a chance to read Rebecca Smith's front page article in the Wall Street Journal today on the topic of our STP nuclear development project and the other three nuclear projects in the vanguard of the American nuclear renaissance. Our leading nuclear development effort, while one of several ongoing NRG initiatives that have driven value creation at NRG over the past several months, is particularly important. With each passing day, I become increasingly convinced that our Country's principal solution both to combating global warming and curing our national addiction to foreign-sourced oil is the mass market electric car powered by a fleet of new advanced nuclear power plants with the energy conveyed through a modern "smart" transmission and distribution system.

At NRG, being in the vanguard of new nuclear development is a start; expect to hear more from us in the months and years to come about our positioning on other parts of this critical 21st century value chain. We look forward to working with you to create value now and in the future.

Sincerely,

/s/ David Crane
